THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1879.

The telegram we publish this evening regarding the changes in the telegraphic system is not so intelligible as could be wished. It is one of those riddles which admit of much solving; and when a solution is supposed to be arrived at, there remains a suspicion that the message may after all mean something else.

Under the circumstances, therefore, we can only endeavour to give as reasonable a version as the words and previous advices will permit. The International Telegraph Conference, then, has terminated—not at Bombay, as might be imagined, but at London, where it has been sitting. "The word rate for Europe in adopted" is, as it stands, nonsensical, as Europe never had any "word rate." What is probably meant is, that the word rate which has been for some years applied to places out of Europe, will now be extended to Europe, and that messages from say Vienna to St. Petersburg will be charged so much per word, instead of so much per ten or twenty words. "Proper names are disallowed in Code sense," is a harder nut to crack. If it means that every proper name, geographical, historical, or personal, is to be prohibited from transmission as an ordinary code word, then the change is one of the most sweeping nature. Not only will it nullify nearly every code in existence, but it will materially affect the business in telegraphic messages which has lately assumed so large dimensions.

The united expression of all commercial men in the East was to the effect that all words and word combinations not exceeding ten letters ought to be admitted as one word without extra charge.
But if the message just received is to be regarded as reliable, all proper names be they long or short, well known or of a "jaw-breaking" tendency—are disallowed. In the circular issued by the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce last year, it was stated that the proposal of the Eastern Telegraph Company would "result in all present codes being rendered useless, and in merchants having to suffer the inconvenience, annoyance, and expense of preparing new ones." The proposal was —"To issue an authorised code of 50,000 words selected from the English, French, German, Latin, Italian and Hindustani languages, and to apply a single rate for each word in this code, while a double charge would be made for any words other than those contained in it." This proposition—which was strongly objected to by all the Chambers of Commerce in the East, as being arbitrary, on the ground that not less than 100,000 words were necessary for the requirements of commerce—prompted the suggestion that "a new deep-sea cable could now be laid down at greatly less than the last one cost," and that "such a line would certainly command the support of the Calcutta merchants." There is of course nothing in the present telegram to lead to the supposition that this proposed scheme was carried, or even discussed, at the International Telegraph Conference; but if the full meaning is to be attached to this message, viz., that all "proper names are disallowed in Code sense," it would seem that even a worse fate has befallen the best supporters of all the existing lines. The only un-ambiguous statement of the telegram is this, that "the figure groups are reduced to three instead of five." This means that, while hitherto five figures could be transmitted as one word, three only will be allowed under the new regulations which will come into force in April next. The cost of telegraphing by means of figure-groups is responsibility for feeding the people, because the latter will clamour for coin in exchange
